Delivering News to the Camp Springs Community

Camp Springs Initiative

June-July-August 2017

On the Web at www.campsprings.com

Contributed by Joe Zink

It's a bit hard to believe, but the Camp Springs community has been part of the internet world for nearly two decades. In 1998, www.campsprings.com was born and has become home to general news and historical information about the community we know as Four Mile. I'd like to encourage you to stop by for a visit.

In addition to access to previous editions of this publication (Camp Springs News), you'll find a terrific series of articles written by life-long resident Mike Enzweiler. In "Growing Up in Camp Springs" Mike shares some of his delightful and sometimes humorous experiences living (and growing up) in a small rural community.

With "The Don Baumann Files" you have a window into the decades of research done by a local historian and his efforts to learn of his Baumann/Enzweiler/Steffen ancestry. His work leads us to little known facts about these families and the Four Mile community.

In addition to the web-site, www.campsprings.com also lives in the world of Facebook. Please "like" us (and encourage others to do the same) at <https://www.facebook.com/campspringsky>. Please note this specific address. A Facebook search of "Camp Springs" will not take you to our page. An easier method is to visit www.campsprings.com and click on the "Facebook" logo.

Thanks to all visitors and contributors over the years. We'll see you on the internet. Happy surfing!

Update from Preserve and Protect

Contributed by Anna Zinkhon

Preserve and Protect Camp Springs usually meets the first Monday of the month at the Camp Springs Winery at 7 p.m. Everyone in the community is invited.

This group is taking the leadership role for addressing watershed quality and management practices in Campbell County. We hope to have a survey this summer for all residents to complete about rain water run off.
